

Contents

Prefazione, di Daniela Marrone	pp.	9
Author's Preface	»	17
1. Historical Context: Essential Elements of Humanism	»	29
1.1. The Printing Press, a Catalyst for Humanism	»	32
1.2. The Rediscovery of Classical Texts – Humanistic Philology	»	54
1.3. Anthropic and “Human” Aspects in Humanism	»	64
1.4. Practical Value of Classical Humanism	»	71
1.5. Medical Humanism as a “New Art”	»	76
1.6. Humanism Outside and Beyond Academia	»	80
1.7. Concluding Remarks on Humanism and Humanists	»	91
2. Thomas Linacre, an Exemplar in Humanistic Scholarship: A Short Biography	»	95
2.1. Early Years [c. 1460-80]	»	96
2.2. Education at the Oxonian Studium [c. 1480-87]	»	97

2.3. Linacre's Iter Italicum [1487-99]	pp.	99
2.4. Florence [1487-90]	»	100
2.5. Rome [1490-92/3]	»	102
2.6. Padua [1492/3-97]	»	103
2.7. Venice [1497-99]	»	105
2.8. Return to England and Later Years [1500-24]	»	106
3. Linacre, his Milieu and his Places: Humanism in Italy and in Padua	»	110
3.1. Geographical Centres of Humanism in Italy	»	111
Florence	»	114
Venice	»	124
Rome	»	129
Padua	»	132
Humanism Elsewhere in Italy	»	134
3.2. The Case of Padua and its University – A Centre of Humanism	»	136
Padua and the Venetian Pre-Humanism	»	136
The Paduan Studium – Origin and Structure	»	139
Universa Universis Patavina Libertas	»	143
Medical Studies in the Paduan Studium Artistarum	»	145
The Studium Artistarum beyond Medicine	»	149
The Other Faculties of the Studium	»	153
3.3. Linacre's Reach across the Italian Peninsula	»	155
4. Linacre, his Milieu and his Places: The Growth of Humanism in England and in Oxford	»	157
4.1. Early Humanism in England	»	157
Medieval Cultural Prodrômes in England	»	159
Early Humanistic Activities in England	»	162

4.2. Town and Gown – Oxford and its Medieval Legacy	pp.	169
Dominus Illuminatio Mea – The Local University	»	170
4.3. Linacre’s Reach in Oxford and across England	»	173
4.4. Connections Between Padua and Oxford – The Peregrinatio Academica of English Students and Scholars to Italy	»	175
Peregrinationes before Linacre	»	178
Travelling Students with an Association to Linacre	»	181
Academic Travels to Padua at the Time of Linacre	»	184
Academic Travels to Italy after Linacre’s	»	186
End of an Era – English Connections to Padua and Italy Subside	»	190
5. Linacre and his Humanistic Legacy	»	193
5.1. Cultural and Concrete Legacy of Thomas Linacre	»	193
5.2. Linacre’s Intangible Footprint, as seen from Praise and Recognition	»	202
5.3. Standing Questions about Linacre
5.4. Thomas Linacre as a Trait d’Union between Padua and Oxford	»	206
	»	212
6. Epilogue: Humanism Beyond Linacre’s Times	»	215
6.1. Outlook – Humanism’s Influences on the Renaissance	»	215
6.2. Prospects – The New Era Heralding the “Scientific Revolution”	»	223
References	»	225